

SIMpull THHN® Cable Guarantee

Southwire Company guarantees that the SIMpull THHN® cable (also rated for THWN-2) supplied to the project named below can be installed without requiring the application of lubricant on the conductors to facilitate the pulling of conductors through PVC or metal conduit. This guarantee is null and void unless contractor follows the instructions found in Southwire's Installation and Application Guide for 600 volt Conductors when installing the product (Installation and Application Guide can be found at www.southwire.com/guarantee). If the performance of SIMpull THHN cable during installation is not equivalent to the performance of lubricated THHN during installation, Southwire agrees to reimburse contractor for the direct costs incurred replacing conductors that fail the insulation resistance testing values shown in Southwire's Installation and Application Guide. Under no circumstances will Southwire be responsible for indirect costs, consequential damages, or incidental damages including loss of profit or revenue.

Southwire reserves the right to have one of its representatives inspect the SIMpull THHN cable prior to its removal.

This guarantee is intended to complement the product warranty and shall expire upon the expiration of the products warranty. (See Southwire's Terms and Conditions at www.southwire.com (<http://www.southwire.com>)).
